The country reports were not different from the usual run, Dr. Shayot, of Plaquemines parish, reported the troubles he was having with the Italians on Pointe Celeste plantation and said that they had barricaded themselves in their houses and warned all doctors that they would kill the first one who attempted to enter. The civil authorities were consulted and it was decided to put the whole plantation under strict quarantine until the fever had risappeared and then proceed against them

Against Greene and Gaynor.

Montreal, Special. - A decision against Colonel J. F. Gaynor and Captain B. D. Greene, the American contractors wanted in the United States on charges of defrauding the government, was handed down by. Judge Ouiment in the Court of the King's Bench. It is the general belief among legal men that Greene and Gaynor have reached the limit of their resources in fighting against extradition. The defense still has two weeks in which to bring further proceedings to act as a stay. The decision given today was on a writ of habeas corpus based upon the content that Judge La sioner who held them for extradition, had no authority to act in the case.

Judge Quimet's decision quashing the writ of babeas corpus holds the original order for extradition issued by Judge La Fontaine.

Donald McMaster, acting on behalf of the United States authorities, has notified Judge La Fontaine to make every preparation for extradition.

MORTON WANTS MILLION REPAID

The Disposition of Life Insurance Tunds is Naturally a Question Toat Interests All the People.

New York, Special.-That the Equitable Life Assurance Society paid out $218,264 to the Mercantile Trust Company in connection with certain loans known as "the Turner loans" and that these payments were without authority, so far as the records of the society disclose, became known today when Paul Morton, president of the society, made public a report on the subject submitted by him to the society's di-

These transactions occurred in what Mr. Morton referred to as "the Turner loans." These, Mr. Morton's report sets forth, were carried in 1894 by the Western National Bank, which was controlled by the Equitable Life Assurance Society. The collateral for the loans was objected to by a bank examiner, and Henry B. Hyde then agreed to transfer the loan and collateral to the Mercantile Trust Co. At that time, apparently, the loans amounted to $661,491.

George V. Turner, in whose name the loan stood, was secretary to Louis Fitzgerald, then President of the Mercantile Trust Company and a close business associate of Henry B. Hyde. The loan was guaranteed by Marcellus Hartley, John E. Searles, Louis Fitzgerald. W. N. Coler, Jr., and H. B. Hyde. On March 21, 1895, the same guarantors renewed their guaranty, the loan having grown to $1,276,-478, the increase being due to attempts to develop the property on which the collateral for the loan was made. Part of this collateral was given by John W. Young and consisted of Salt Lake and Eastern Railway stock and other Salt Lake stocks. This collateral proved to be of little value. Other collateral consisted of contracts for the Kentucky, Mineral and Timber Company and the Amity Land and Irrigation Company, of Colcrado. Attempts were made to develop the Kentucky property and the Colorado property, and large sums were expended for that purpose, and by July 1, 1905, the cost of the Kentucky property stood at $619,067 and the Colorado property at $2,809,633. The Equitable Life Assurance Society paid the Mercantile Trust Company $218,264 on these loans on January 23, 1900, and $500,000 on February 4, 1904.

"The records of the society," said Mr. Morton, "disclose no authority whatever for these payments, and the cash entries in respect to them were very obscure.

PATIENCE IS FINALLY EXHAUSTED

Venezuelan Dictator Must Disavow Offensive Attitude Toward French Charge d'Affairs at Caracas or Negotations Will Be Broken Off.

Paris By Cable -The offensive attitude of Venezuela toward M. Taigny, the French charge d'affaires at Caracas, has aroused indignation in official quarters here. Although the Ministry has not yet taken definite action, it is said in the highest quarters that Premier Rouvier undoubtedly will demand that Venezuela disavow the offensive action and adopt a course conformable with the usual courtesies of diplomatic intercourse. The Venezuelan authorities are now seeking to show that their action was directed against M. Taigny personally, and not against the French government, but officiels here do not accept the distinct. ... between M. Taighy's personal and official capacity.

The semi-official Temps Friday printed a leading article reflecting the official sentiment on the subject. It said that M. Taigny has been ordered to insist on Venezuela's withdrawing her positive refusal to deal with him. If the withdrawal is made and President Castro makes an apology, then the by various cities, towns and communinegotiations will continue. If Venezueto does not accode it will be unwise to immediately break off diplomatic relations by the withdrawal of M. Taigny, since this would leave French interests unprotected. The best course would be for France and the United States which reflected on the very instincts of to make a joint naval demonstration, simliar to that in which Great Britain, Germany and Italy took part. The authorities here say that exchanges will occur at Washington relative to the mutual interest involved in the pending controversies.

F. of potash, but leafy plants like cabbages, spinach, etc., need a fertilizer Station, Raleigh. high in ammonia, and hence for these we change the proportions. The only winter crop of a leafy nature to which we apply the last-named mixture is lettuce, but of late we have varied this and make it 800 pounds of acid phosphate, 800 pounds of dried blood and is certainly a mistake, for all animals 400 pounds of muriate of potash. This is the result of many years of experimenting in the growing of lettuce in frames in winter. We found that cottonseed meal encouraged the growth of the damping-off fungus in the frames and we get a higher percentage | farm, what is easier than to cut a numof ammonia with the dried blood. The winter lettuce crop is now the most important one grown by market as the foundation for the roof? Set gardeners in the South Atlantic States. Most of our growers use cotton cloth on their frames and some have established expensive steam plants, and run steam pipes through the frames. While cloth is cheaper at the start than glass, the glass is, in the long run, cheaper, and no steam heat is needed if one has straw or burlap mats to cover the glass on extreme cold nights. I use mats made six feet square made of burlap with waste wool quilted between. These are used only in the most severe weather, and mats that have been in use four winters look still as good as new. By their aid I keep frost out entirely, and do not need the great expense of steam. With cloth the grower is at times obliged to keep the cover on several days and the plants suffer from lack of sunshine, while the glass admits the sunshine and they grow sturdy and strong.

I have found that the best winter lettuce demands a liberal amount of well rotted horse stable manure to be used in addition to the fertilizer. for we have found that the best lettuce cannot be grown with manure alone nor with fertilizer alone. It is chiefly the moisture-retaining nature of the rotted manure that aids in the solution of the fertilizers used. We make our first sowing of lettuce the last of August, and then another late in September and a third sowing is made in one of the frames after the first crop of lettuce has been cut out in January. The August sowing can usually be headed in November without the help of frames. The second sowing is set in the frames the last of October and is cut out during the winter, when plants from the same sowing that have been left in the open ground are used for replanting and a part of one frame as we have said is used for sowing seed. The plants from this sowing are for setting in the open ground the first of March for the last spring crop. Those who are growing lettuce for winter should always have an abundant water supply, for it is often essential to irrigate the beds in our dry fall weather to get the seed to germinate, and when glass is used it is equally important to have a supply for watering the frames so as not to be dependent on the rainfall.

Another winter crop in which we take a lively interest is the winter radish crop. For this crop we use the Rose Colored and the White Chinese. This is heavily fertilized with the first mentioned mixture of 9.7, and four parts of acid phosphate, cottonseed meal and potash at rate of 1000 pounds per acre, and the seed is sown in rows one foot apart in September on very mellow and warm soil. As soon as large enough to handle, they are thinned to two inches in the rows, and as the weather gets cold the rows are well muiched with fresh straw manure. We thus are able to pull good solid radishes all winter through till the early radishes sown in the mand for them is growing cae' year, frame are ready for use.

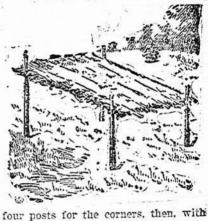

In part of our frames we take but the one crop of midwinter lettuce. We then again fertilize the frame and sow seed of radishes and beets ment for making wood are an excellent late in January in rows crospwise f tilizer, causing a free, but firm the frames just wide enough apart to growth. #### Shade For Small Stock.

Most farmers make some attempt to provide shade in the pasture for their horses and cows, but let the swine, sheep and poultry go without it, which and birds like shade. It is an easy matter to erect a number of small shade places on the pasture, and at small expense, if me is willing to invest the small amount of labor necessary. If there is a wood lot on the ber of poles to use for posts, and then a number of lighter branches to use the poles firmly in the ground, making

Spend enough time on the work to make it strong enough so that the wind will not blow it over. When you finish you will have a shade house something like that shown in the cut, and the stock will enjoy it and be all the better for it. They would thank you, if they could, so spend a little time building some, even two or three by way, of experiment.

Ducks Have No Crops.

Unlike other domestic fowls the duck has no crop-all food passing direct from the throat to the gizzard. For this reason ducks need soft food, and this is why in their natural state they, seek the fields and marshes, where they may gather tender grass, bugs and worms. In confinement their proper food is wheat bran, cornmeal, ground oats, meat scraps, sand and green food. On the farm they will look out for themselves, and only a scant supply of some soft food need be given.

Ducks are fond of potatoes, and will greedily devour all the parings and small potatoes that are useless for other purposes. It is well also to remember that the sand supplies only in a small way the digestive machinery. Some good, sharp grit must be kept convenient for them.

· Care of Capons.

The capons are now just beginning to grow and build large frames, and they should be looked after carefully. They should be kept in separate yards. and have all they will eat of good, wholesome food. It is needless to give them the run of the farm, as they will not roam over it as other chickens do. They are big, lazy fellows which eat and grow, and they well repay us when the time comes to send them to market.

Nice capons, weighing when dressed, from six to eight pounds, will easily bring from twenty-five to thirty-five cents a pound, while other chickens of same age which weigh about four pounds will bring only twelve or fifteen cents.
